NOTE A - BASIS OF PRESENTATION AND SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Nature of Operations

Cooper Hunting Accessories, LLC was formed in February 2006 in the state of Tennessee as a limited liability company. On November 20, 2008, the Company filed with the State of Tennessee to convert Cooper Hunting Accessories, LLC into Cooper Hunting Industries, Inc., (“the Company”), a Tennessee corporation.

On November 5, 2010, the shareholders of Cooper Holding Corp (formally Sharp Holding Corp) completed a Merger Agreement with Cooper Hunting Industries, Inc., a Tennessee corporation. The merger was accounted for as a reverse acquisition, with Cooper Holding Corp being treated as the acquiring entity for financial reporting purposes.

The Company designs and produces a line of innovative concealment products which allows sportsmen to get closer to wildlife.

Basis of Presentation

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates. The financial statements presented are unaudited.

Cash Equivalents

Investments having an original maturity of 90 days or less that are readily convertible into cash are considered to be cash equivalents. During the period from February 26, 2006 (date of inception) to September 30, 2012, the Company had no cash equivalents.

Recently Enacted Accounting Standards

Management does not believe that any recently issued, but not yet effective, accounting standards, if currently adopted, would have a material effect on the accompanying financial statements.

Use of Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and reported amounts of revenue and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Property and Equipment

Property and equipment are stated at cost and are depreciated principally on methods and at rates designed to amortize their costs over their estimated useful lives.

The estimated service lives of property and equipment are principally as follows:

Furniture and fixtures and equipment 5- 7 years

Fair Value of Financial Instruments

The Company defines the fair value of a financial instrument as the amount at which the instrument could be exchanged in a current transaction between willing parties. Financial instruments included in the Company's financial statements include cash and cash equivalents, short-term investments, accounts receivable, other receivables, other assets, accounts payable, notes payable and due to affiliates. Unless otherwise disclosed in the notes to the financial statements, the carrying value of financial instruments is considered to approximate fair value due to the short maturity and characteristics of those instruments. The carrying value of debt approximates fair value as terms approximate those currently available for similar debt instruments.

Restatement of Financial Statements

In 2009 upon incorporation of the Company, the management elected to recognize an accrual for payroll as incurred related to the officers of the Company. The Company has been consistently following that policy in its financial statements. In 2012, the Company's management reviewed its accounting policies and concluded that application of its accounting policy was resulting in substantial liabilities and losses associated with the production of accrued payroll relating to officers being recognized in financial reporting periods. It was anticipated that at some future date the Company would have sufficient cash flows to finally pay these salaries. The Company has experienced substantial losses and negative cash flows since inception and has been unable to pay these accrued salaries.

Consequently management decided to change the company's policy of accruing officer payroll the first time that it occurred.

As has been the policy in the past, the Company plans to issue comparative financial statements presenting the years 2012, 2011, 2010 and 2009.

For the years ending December 31, 2011, 2010, and 2009, accrued officer payroll, as reported, aggregated $81,600, $97,500, and $312,000, respectively.

The Company did not nor is anticipated to have the cash available from either profitable operations or access to borrowing operating capital to pay these salaries.

A combined Federal and State income tax rate of 40% was in effect for all relevant periods.

Prior to the change in accounting principle, there were no temporary differences or loss carry-forwards and thus there were no deferred assets or liabilities. Payroll is deductible for income tax purposes when incurred, and therefore, upon adoption of the new accounting policy, the Company will have a temporary difference between the book and income tax basis of its assets accrued salaries. These accrued payroll costs that are being eliminated in the financial statement in the year they are being deducted on the Company's income tax return represent a future taxable temporary difference that will give rise to a deferred income tax liability.

Advertising Cost

Advertising costs are expensed as incurred. Advertising expense for the nine months ended September 30, 2012 and 2011 aggregated $ 7,519 and $ 10,890.

NOTE B--LOSS PER SHARE

The computation of loss per share is based on the weighted average number of common shares outstanding during the period presented. Diluted loss per common share is the same as basic loss per common share as there are no potentially dilutive securities outstanding (options and warrants).

NOTE C - INCOME TAXES

From inception thru November 20, 2008, the Company operated as a limited liability company and elected to be taxed similar to a partnership. Accordingly, each member was responsible for reporting its respective share of the Company's net income or loss for federal income tax purposes and the Company did not pay federal income tax.

From November 20, 2008 forward, the Company accounts for income taxes using the asset and liability method described in SFAS No. 109, "Accounting For Income Taxes", the objective of which is to establish deferred tax assets and liabilities for the temporary differences between the financial reporting and the tax basis of the Company's assets and liabilities at the enacted tax rates expected to be in effect when such amounts are realized or settled. A valuation allowance related to deferred tax assets is recorded when it is more likely than not that some portion or all of the deferred tax assets will not be realized. The Company recorded a deferred income tax asset for the effect of net operating loss carryforwards. In recognition of the uncertainty regarding the ultimate amount of income tax benefits to be derived, the Company has recorded a full valuation allowance at September 30, 2012 and December 31, 2011.
